The Artist

Composition and lyrics by Dovid Klaver

לחן ומילים: דוד קליבר

There once was an artist who set out to paint
A most beautiful work of art
Taking his time, though the man was a master,
For the vision had come from his heart
Each color was chosen and added with care
Every hue had a purpose, a place.
And when it was done, just one look at the canvas
Brought a smile to the artist's face

Chorus:
Can you see how the colors all blend and combine
How the dark always fades into light
Can you see all the care behind every design
And how nothing is all black or white
Can you tell every brush, every stroke, every touch
Makes a difference no matter how slight
Can you see in the end, every inch plays its part
In bringing my painting to life.

One of the colors did not understand
The role in the painting he played
I'm off to one side, and my colors are shabby
What difference have I really made?
I don't have their beauty, their splendor or grace
I'm just a mistake, it appears
And he cried to the heavens, and poured out his heart
As the paint slowly turned into tears

Chorus:
I can see how their colors all blend and combine
In my darkness compared to their light
There is no one who'd care for my simple design
If I fade away, it's all right.
I can tell - every brush, every stroke, every touch
Makes a difference except for mine
In the shadows of others so bold and so bright,
How can my colors possibly shine?

The artist asked, in a voice oh-so-kind
Why the color did not play his part.
You're my creator, you know I'm unworthy
Just a stain on your work of art.
But instead of replying, the artist just smiled
And whispered, "My friend, say no more."
And touching the paint, led the tears on his fingers
And holding them high, took them far from the canvas
To a view they could not see before.

Chorus:
Can you see how your colors all blend and combine
How the darkness fades into the light
Can you see all the care behind every design
And how nothing is all black or white
Can you tell every brush, every stroke, every touch
Makes a difference no matter how slight
So you see in the end, you, too, play a part
In bringing my painting to life.

So you see in the end, you, too, play a part
In bringing the painting to life.

Hashem, please hear me and show me mercy, Hashem, please be my Helper.
To You Hashem I will call, and to Hashem I will supplicate. -Psalms 30: 9 & 11

I always knew You were there for me,
I knew that You were listening,
I knew that You were watching over me.
I always knew, if I turn to You,
I knew, somehow, You'd pull me through,

I knew my faith could always rest on You.
And then You came and opened up the world for me,
I felt you lift me right off my feet.
Your guiding Hand reached down so undeniably,
That's how I knew that You were always listening.
